My dear President Falconer:

This letter will introduce to you my friend, Mr. Walter W. Shaw, generally of Bournemouth, England, and, incidentally, of New York. My reason for making this description is that since his marriage to an American lady he has found this country so attractive that they both spend part of their time here. Their son, Courtney Shaw, has recently entered Magdalen College, and after he completes his course there, his parents think it wise for him to spend a year or so in some American university. I have suggested to Mr. Shaw that he consult you, and as he can better present what he has in mind verbally than I can write it, I am giving him this letter to you, knowing that you will be glad to advise him, and that you will be pleased to make his personal acquaintance. I make this latter statement on the basis of my own friendship for him of more than twenty-five years' standing.

Cordially and sincerely yours,

President Robert A. Falconer,
